

Trucks on Tour
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., July 4.—There started simultaneously today from the White House, a string of motor trucks, those leaders of the gods of war, the battlefront and the capital, for the "Roads of Remembrance," as monuments to the accomplishments of the drivers of these same trucks and others associated with them in the Great War.

The trucks, a stupendous array of them, were the vehicles that had displaced the army mule in the recent unpleasantness. The campaign of "Roads of Remembrance" is the less modern since it would substitute living trees along the roadsides for monuments of granite and stone. The war department is responsible for the trip of the trucks which is to terminate at San Francisco, and the American Forestry Association is responsible for the campaign of tree planting.

The plan as to the roads is to retrace that bit of oriental history of centuries when, in Japan, the great teyasa died and went forth that each of his landed retainers should bring a memorial stone to the funeral to decorate the crypt where he had laid away. But one nobleman failed. So poor was he that he could not provide a lantern. To make amends he planted by the sides of the road leading to Nikko, rows of the "Roads of Remembrance." Now the men who brought tablets and lanterns have been lost to the annals of time but passing hosts continue to bless the poor man who was hated by the Nikko road, now one of the most famous thoroughfares in the world.

So, today, the idea is interjected that the route followed by these trucks be chosen as that along which trees of remembrance be planted for the benefit of posterity. It is suggested that each county through which this road runs be asked to line the route with trees which, as time passes, will be big ones like those of Nikko.

This country is just now on the eve of a great epoch in road building. It soon will spend $500,000,000 for roads building, and every dollar of this will be reflected in the profits of the users of these roads. The motor truck operator must keep in mind constantly the absolute necessity of having good roads for his truck to run over and appreciate the economy of truck operation when the roads are of the right sort. The last Congress, shortly before adjournment, made an appropriation of $400,000,000 in the post office appropriation bill to meet the federal part of the program, the federal government going fifty-fifty with the states. This work is expected to employ more than 100,000 men in active road construction in addition to the men engaged in the production and furnishing of road-building materials. It affords one of the largest opportunities for profitable employment for returned soldiers and sailors.

Two years ago when it became necessary to build the new highways of the cantonments, it was found that the roads connecting the cantonments with the surrounding cities were in no sense adequate. For the cantonment roads had to be constructed. There is always the possibility of another such emergency, and the only means of insuring such contingencies is by the construction of cantonment roads. While the security of the nation in such an emergency might depend upon good roads for military uses, the roads would not be confined to military matters. For a great portion of the time during the past two years 50 per cent of the railroad capacity of the country was required for the military. The transportation of food, fuel and the like had to be accomplished largely by means other than rail. Some hardships were entailed. The motor truck, however, under the best of circumstances, rendered excellent service.

When the present road-building program is carried out and the total improved roads in the country are increased, the service possibilities of the motor truck will be correspondingly increased and the safety of the nation and the comfort of the people will be insured.

There is a great need of commerce, now enlarging before us, be met and these roads will indeed become the friend of man for they will bring him closer to the nation's unity and the nation becomes one in thought and in purpose. Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry Association, here present, is president of the committee of the old sort and that tree planting should be resorted to as a substitute. He advocates building "Roads of Remembrance" right now, and that they will not merely be a burden of the truck traffic of the future, the wagons of the farmer in getting his produce to market, but the feet of the generations of children that are to come, that are to make the civilization of tomorrow.

The National Committee on Memorials, with a hundred members, has inaugurated with the American Community Service in advising cities and towns in the construction of memorials to the Americans who participated in the war. The committee advises states and municipalities as to suitable and appropriate memorials to perpetuate the glory of the men who fought for humanity. Members of the committee are known because of their technical, artistic and literary attainments.

Such other movements are under way as the state of Indiana, which plans for a memorial grove for each county. Senator George H. E. "Sage" in Golden Gate Park, Secretary Lane is honorary chairman of the committee, and he has sent to 6,000 cities and towns of the country letters advising them to plant a memorial grove. The committee has suggested as the most appropriate and lasting form of memorial.

Historic Vimy Ridge which saw some of the bloodiest and fiercest fighting of the war is to be a memorial park to the Canadian soldiers. Pitted as it is with shell holes and craters made by mines it can never be turned again into agricultural land; so the Canadian government will plant on it the maples of Canada. It has been suggested that in the same way the Argonne be made an American park, a shrine hallowed by the blood of American soldiers. A plan is now being urged for "Roads of Remembrance" in France which will lead from one famous battle ground to another or from one cemetery to another. The great army that died must be kept in remembrance. Clemenceau said, "The Imperial War Graves Commission is now working to place every grave for Great Britain and the Empire in the spot where the hero lies buried."

R-34 TO TRY SECOND SEA FLIGHT

Wilson in Senate Thursday

PRESIDENT DEFENSE COUNCIL FLAYED

WILL LAND TUESDAY

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS TO BE GIVEN IN OPEN SESSION.

SPEAKING TOUR TO START NEXT WEEK

Numerous Invitations Received; Important Bills Await Executive's Signature.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, July 7.—President Wilson will land in England at 12:15 p. m. Thursday. It was announced today.

Because a treaty would be under discussion some doubt had been expressed as to whether the senate would be in open session, but it was understood that Mr. Wilson desired that the session be open.

It has not been definitely determined when the president will start his trip around the country. There are indications that he will not leave before the middle of next week. He was invited by wireless to deliver his first address to the Methodist centenary in Columbus, Ohio, but he replied that he felt it was impossible to leave Washington.

Has Many Invitations.
Numerous invitations have been extended to the president but none have been accepted.

When the president reaches Washington he will find an accumulation of official business, awaiting his attention. Early awaiting his signature include the sundry civil measure with the shipping board and other huge appropriations; the army measure that puts the army on a peacetime basis; the rider repealing the daylight saving law, the deficiency bill, the vocational educational measure, and a number of others.

Members of the president's cabinet will greet him at New York and accompany him to Washington.

Heat Strikes Ship.
On board the U. S. S. George Washington, Sunday, July 6, the presidential fleet which is steaming toward New York harbor, today encountered the first breath of the heat wave which has prevailed along the Atlantic coast. It was accompanied by humidity and considerable fog and the ships slackened their pace to 12 knots an hour.

President Wilson rested a good part today but spent some time on the upper deck and with Mrs. Wilson. Visited wounded soldiers in the deck hospital. He will devote tomorrow and Tuesday morning to finishing his message to congress. This probably will be done by noon. Wednesday, preparatory to its presentation and the submission of the peace treaty, the treaty with France, and the protocols to congress, Thursday.

Anxious to Be In U. S.
The presidential party is evidently looking forward with high anticipations to being on American soil again and all arrangements have been made for arriving in New York city where a citizens committee will be waiting. From the terry house, Mr. Wilson will be taken to Carnegie hall where there will be reception ceremonies with a brief address by Mr. Wilson.

Old Maids all Wed

COMMUNITY CENTER TO REPLACE SALOON IS NOW STATE LAW

Madison, July 7.—Senator Claire B. Bird's plan of a community center to take the place of the saloon as a common meeting center has received the approval of Gov. E. L. Philipp and the bill to promote this end is now a law.

The Bird bill which has just been approved by the governor promises that a community center may be created and a community house maintained in any tract of contiguous territory of the United States, or a population of at least five hundred inhabitants, such territory to be bounded by towns, school district, section, quarter-section or ward lines, or streams, lakes, swamps or similar natural boundaries. Such house, if dedicated to the memory of the soldiers and sailors of the United States may be called by the name of memorial community house of such district.

In the creation of a community center district the people have the right to have regular weekly meetings and can be established. If the vote is favorable the officers of the community centers shall be a director, treasurer and clerk, who shall constitute a community board to manage its affairs.

Such community house shall be used for the following purposes: public gatherings for information, discussion, recreation, amusement, public banquets, suppers and other athletic games, restaurants, rooms for community agricultural projects, and such other purposes as the directors may deem fit and the board shall adopt rules and regulations governing its maintenance, operation and management.

The plan of the community center is to have regular weekly meetings and entertainments at which all the people of the district may gather. Senator Bird declares that the saloon in rural districts has been a meeting place for crime, vice and immorality. The saloon is gone, the community center is the nearest substitute to take its place.

BIG BUSINESS CATERED TO, IS CHARGE

FEDERAL INVESTIGATOR GRAHAM LAUNCHES TI-RADE ON WILSON'S SYSTEM.

ORGANIZATION IS VIOLATION OF LAW

Members Worked With High Hand Declares Representative; Secret Combine.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, July 7.—Charges that the president organized the council of national defense before war was declared in absolute violation of law and thereby created a "secret government of the United States" which formulated war legislation, dictated policies the country was to pursue, and befriended "big business" were made today by Chairman Graham of the special house committee investigating war department expenditures.

Minutes of the council were read to the committee by Mr. Graham, together with a report in which he asserted the council "assumed such broad powers that Major General Goethals, former chief of the purchase and storage service division of the war department, defied it; cabinet members protected against its activities and Judge Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation accused it of operating in 'flagrant violation of law.'"

Congress, Intent Ignored.
Mr. Graham declared the "secret government" was created by ignoring and reversing the intent of congress in authorizing the establishment of a council of national defense in August, 1918. As authorized by congress the council was to be composed of six members of the cabinet, who were to be the real executives and seven civilians to be selected by the president, who were to act in a purely advisory capacity. Instead of doing this, Mr. Graham asserted, the president made the advisory commission the real executives, "clothing them with unprecedented and almost unlimited powers. In the 'behind closed doors' weeks and even months before war was declared," he said, "these seven men designed practically every war measure which congress subsequently enacted, they dispensed with the system of purchasing war supplies, planned a press censorship, designed a system of food control, and selected Herbert Hoover as director, and even determined on the daylight saving scheme."

Worked Within the Law
"Conceived within the law but brought into existence in absolute violation of law, it is not surprising that this secret government of the United States itself persistently ignored and even violated the law; that it allowed interested parties to fix the prices of war supplies; that it put the people of the country to incalculable unnecessary expense and carried out negotiations with a high hand."

Mr. Graham declared that when Major General Goethals was called to the eleventh hour to rescue the war department from the public obloquy which was fast settling upon it as a result of the methods and incapacity of the secret government, he repudiated and practically defied it.

"Our soldiers were actually dying of pneumonia in the camps because of lack of proper clothing and blankets," Mr. Graham said, "and General Goethals assumed the duties of quartermaster-general only on condition he should have free scope in the performance of his duties, unhampered by the control of the secret government."

Goethals Took Over Powers
"Immediately he took from the members of that council their power to order purchases and fixed prices and at the M. S. Kellogg nursery, south of those members of the advisory commission who had so deplorably bungled the control of supplies for the army."

Steps are Taken To Get Kaiser

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
London, July 7.—The allies have not yet made any official representations to the Dutch government regarding the extradition of the former German emperor, but necessary steps are being taken in the matter. Andrew Yoner Law, government spokesman declared in the house of commons today.

Answering a question as to whether any unofficial communication had been sent to the Dutch government, Mr. Bone Law said: "I would rather not say."

Another member asked: "Is the spokesman for the government aware that nobody particularly wants the ex-kaiser to be brought here?"

This question was received with cheers.

PUBLIC RULE IS ITALIAN ORDER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Rome, Sunday, July 6.—"Salus Publica Supremus Lex" (the public welfare is the supreme law), the ancient motto of the Romans, is being applied by the Italian government at this critical moment.

"The government closed one eye, in order to see both, for so long that the people took the law in their own hands," said a leading Italian statesman. "They were aiming at giving a harsh but deserved lesson to the greatest scoundrel of his history. With pitiless energy, however, as pitiless as its leniency heretofore, the government now intends to repress and attempt to transform its just protest into something more serious."

Troops Occupy Florence
Florence has been occupied by military forces. The same thing has happened at other most rebellious cities.

In Genoa where the uprising against the cost of living took a most orderly form, the people imposed a reduction in all prices, and prevented any and every kind of looting. At Milan the people presented an ultimatum demanding that the prices of all necessities be materially reduced by Tuesday.

Mob Ransacks Shops
A mob ransacked nearly all the shoe shops at Palermo, the troops being called too late to prevent pillaging.

From all towns where disorders have occurred the same report is coming. A week ago everything could be bought at high prices, but now the shops are closed, goods are lacking and families are in despair of finding something to eat.

VICTIM OF THIRD HOLD-UP ESCAPES AFTER HOT FIGHT
James Feeney, discharged soldier, son of Patrick Feeney, farmer living in the Milwaukee road a mile east of the fair grounds, was made a victim of the third hold-up in as many weeks while on his way home at 10:30 Saturday night. His two assailants escaped after he had grappled with them and freed himself before they could rifle his pockets.

Feeney had spent the evening in Janesville and was walking to his home alone. According to his story he was nearing the fair grounds when he was suddenly grabbed by two men who had apparently followed him from the city. Feeney says one approached him from the front with a revolver while the other attacked him from the rear, reaching for his hip pocket in which he carried a wallet containing $125 in currency.

Acting quickly before they could get to his pocket, Feeney fell the assailant in front of him by a hard blow on the chest and then turned to battle his other opponent. After a short struggle in which his clothes were torn, Feeney escaped and ran to a house near-by to notify the police.

In the meantime the two thugs made their get-away through the fields near the fair grounds. A thorough search of the surrounding country failed to reveal any trace of them.

The police have, but a meager description of the two men to work on. Acting Chief Thomas Morrissey said today:

All is Calm in Florence, Strike Declared Off
Florence, Sunday, July 6.—The strike was declared off at midnight Saturday. All is calm in the city.

GIANT SHIP READY TO "CAST OFF"

BRITISH DIRIGIBLE LANDED AT MINEOLA, N. Y., LAST NIGHT.

HURRIES BACK TO SCOTLAND

Blimp May Make Exhibitor Flights Over Atlantic Coast Cities.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Mineola, N. Y., July 7.—Lieut. Col. Frederick W. Lucas of the royal air force, in charge of land arrangements for the R-34, denied that there had been any change of plans for the departure of the big British dirigible R-34, Major Scott announced yesterday at noon that the R-34 would start on its return journey at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning, flying over Boston. The R-34 will not circle New York before turning east, he said.

The commander of the R-34 based his announcement of the starting hour on the assumption that the wind would die down and permit the refueling of the dirigible.

"We will cruise over Boston," he said, "and then follow trans-Atlantic trade routes. We are selecting that course because there we will find the most favorable western winds."

Major Scott announced later that an effort would be made to shape the R-34's course so that it would pass over the George Washington, which is bringing President Wilson home.

On her return trip to her base in Scotland, the dirigible will take the southern route, leaving the United States at some middle-Atlantic port and heading directly for Spain.

May Fly Over Cities
At a conference with Lieut. Colonel Frederick Lucas, the royal air force advance party, and Brig. Gen. Edward M. Maitland, the official observer, at noon, today the request of the United States navy department that the R-34 make a flight over New York city, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington was to be considered.

In order to relieve the four hundred soldiers who were standing in the anchor ropes of the R-34 during an electrical and wind storm last night, the big bag was raised to obviate the danger of damage from wind.

During this operation a rope releasing water ballast from an aft compartment was released by accident and the rear of the bag shot up into the air to an altitude of some four hundred feet, while the nose was only 200 feet above the field.

Adjustments of the ballast had to be accomplished before the heat of the sun caused the gas in the bag to expand.

The R-34 was torn from her mooring rope this morning by a violent gust of wind. The cross girder to which the rope was attached broke under the strain, tipping a hole six feet by three feet in the gas bag. The giant dirigible was saved from being blown away by 300 men who seized ropes hanging from her sides and held her down with great difficulty.

COL. TURNER HEADS 'WORLD WAR VETS'

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS]
Milwaukee, July 7.—The Association of World War Veterans of Wisconsin, convention, elected Col. John Turner, Mauston, as temporary chairman; Elmer S. Owen, Milwaukee, vice chairman; John Salsman, Madison, secretary; and Col. M. Cousins, Eau Claire, treasurer.

That the convention would vote to affiliate with the American Legion was the consensus of opinion among the delegates.

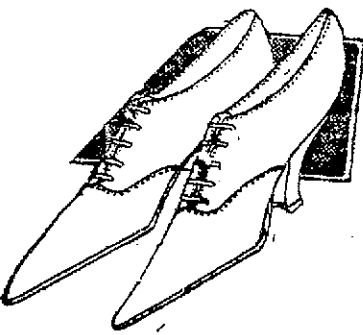

Janesville is represented at the State convention of war veterans at the Hotel Pfister in Milwaukee this week by Capt. Harold Pelton, George Stramp, and Robert J. Cunningham. The three local delegates left for the convention at 7 o'clock this morning to be present at the opening session this morning and to remain until the close of the meeting tomorrow afternoon. Delegates from all parts of the state are in attendance.

Matters pertaining to the perfection of local organizations of war veterans were scheduled to be taken up today. Upon the return of Janesville's delegates it is probable that another meeting of local service men will be held to effect a permanent organization.

GENERAL REGRETS FRANCE-ITALY CLASH
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Rome, Sunday, July 6.—General Savi, commander of the French troops in Fiume, says in an interview with the Giornale d'Italia that the action of some of his soldiers who recently offended Italians in that city by cheering for Jugo-Slavs was "most deplorable." He points out, however, that it would be a mistake to generalize and make the fault of a few that of the whole French contingent.

He says: "I am very sorry there should be any feeling between two peoples who have fraternized at the front against the common enemy. Italy ought to be compensated for her sacrifices and when Fiume is assigned to Italy I shall be the first to rejoice from the bottom of my heart."

TRUCKS ON TOUR IN CAMPAIGN FOR MEMORIAL ROADS

So does the general tendency, at home and abroad, seem to be toward the planting of trees as memorials. Highway improvement and tree planting go hand in hand and trees are being planted along highways in many parts of the country. Different species of trees are to be planted along the various roads in Michigan for which $50,000,000 has been voted according to W. S. Linton, of the state tax commission, and a member of the State Good Roads association. Along the highway from Chicago to Saginaw, walnut trees are to be planted and this will be called the Victory Highway. The people along the route have promised to improve and beautify their property. This is a good illustration of the way in which tree planting leads to other civic improvement. The State of Maryland is one of the first to get its highway program underway. The national Defense Highway being between Washington and Annapolis is being developed.

In Delaware, a little further up, the Du Pont highway, which is to put a ribbon through the state from end to end, is being laid out with an elaborate plan for border beautification. The road reservation is 200 feet wide which allows some seventy feet on each side for a landscape. On this highway, there will be more than a mere row of trees on each side. Its borders will be converted into demonstration strips to show to the property owner the possibilities for the beautification of the landscape as she is to performances on a stupendous scale. It is held that the proposal here put forth should appeal to the imagination of America, and that the highway from one coast to the other, bordered all the way by towering trees, as a living monument to the heroes of this war to which the United States gave a purpose, may come to be a reality.

SPEEDY RAILS WIN FROM MILTON, 13-7; BELOIT GIANTS NEXT

The Rails scored three runs in the first inning when Nix first up, singled, Pire doubled and Eckman slammed out a homer, scoring all. In the third frame Pire whacked a home run with two down and Griffith on third. Eckman and Nix, who had been injured in a pretty double play for the Rails.

MINOR ARRESTED BY FRENCH, RELEASED

(By Associated Press)
Coblentz, Sunday, July 6.—Robert Minor, a newspaper correspondent who has been under detention here by army authorities, pending an investigation, has been released. It was announced today. No formal announcement was made but officers said the case had been dropped on orders from higher authorities.

It is understood that Minor will be returned to Paris where he was arrested a month ago by the French at the request of the British. The latter refused to prosecute him, turning over certain alleged evidence to the American authorities. It is said that this was in connection with an alleged conspiracy to spread radical propaganda among soldiers within the British and American ranks.

Vogel is the oldest active minister of the gospel in the United States, it is believed. He still preaches occasionally.

Squeezing
the Bag!

ANY housewife can tell you that she can get a little more jelly by "squeezing the bag"—but she doesn't do it.

It's the clear, natural drip of the pure fruit juice that gives her the prize jelly. When the natural drip stops and the bag is squeezed, it crowds over a lot of pulpy particles that don't belong in real jelly. She wouldn't think of setting out such a grainy, cloudy dish if the minister came to dinner.

This is a perfect illustration of the difference between true gasoline and the squashed-out near-gasoline that big interests unblushingly hand out to you in all the cut-glass pomp of a real jelly dish.

True gasoline—or "straight run"—is the natural drip of the good, clean, explosive motor fuel that you used to get years ago. It is almost ready-made by nature, and separates as easily and naturally from the parent crude oil as steam does from water. It is not marred by foreign particles of carbon or kerosene.

Near-gasoline is made by deliberately "squeezing the bag". The dregs and residues of petroleum which has already given up all its natural quota of real gasoline are put through a dubious process called "cracking" that crowds out a feeble parody of true gasoline, packed to saturation with foul and non-burning elements that are an insult—and danger—to your motor.

It is on such ground as this that we have undertaken to make this a community of TRUE gasoline users--willing and eager to pay a few cents greater first cost for many dollars saved in after-cost--with quick starting, missless running and power-sureness as extra "velvet".

True Gasoline 30*
Wadhams cents

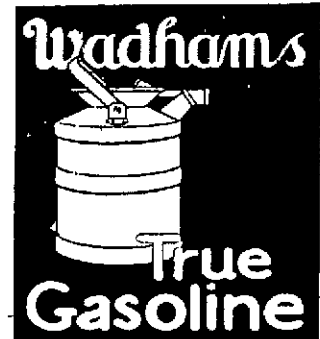

is genuine "straight run" gasoline, made to run motors and not to match prices.

Keep the homely idea of the jelly bag in mind when you drive by temptation and pay a few pennies more for Wadhams true gasoline.

If your garage man does not display this "sign of the red can", telephone to our wholesale distributing station (Franklin St. and Western Ave.)

Bell, 809 Rock Co. 491

And you will be directed to a dealer who will supply you with the genuine

True Gasoline

30c

is the price to pay if you wish to attain the ultimate in gasoline economy. All Wadhams advertising refers particularly to the 30c grade of Wadhams Gasoline. If you have been using the 27c quality, pay 30c for the highest grade no matter how well satisfied you are with the former.

The Standard
Oil Company
(Indiana)
and Industry

The phases of usefulness the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) renders as a public servant are varied.

One of the services not generally known, which the Company must render, is to assist industrial institutions in keeping down their manufacturing costs.

The Company maintains a staff of highly trained lubricating engineers, whose business it is to go into industrial plants, make a careful and thorough study of their mechanical equipment, and determine what lubricants are best suited to each machine under the prevailing conditions.

Their constant effort is to keep down manufacturing costs by specifying the particular oils and greases that will enable the machinery to deliver a maximum of service at a minimum of cost.

The work of the lubricating engineers is a part of the comprehensive service the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) renders.

This is another phase of the usefulness of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as a public servant, showing the constant effort being made by the Company to discharge its obligation in a complete and satisfactory manner.

LET'S GET BUSY.

Swimming is one of summer's greatest sports and is perhaps indulged in by more people than any other. Janesville is fortunate in being situated on a body of water which furnishes her citizens with most desirable natural facilities. Hundreds have taken advantage of the local beaches in the last few weeks and many more would have done so if accommodations had been provided.

The old days of "hang your clothes on a hickory limb" are gone. More bath houses and dressing rooms are needed to care for the people who wish to avail themselves of an opportunity to use the river. Women especially are prevented from indulging in the sport
because they do not have adequate facilities for making their toilet. Although some improvements have been made at the bath houses, they are far from being up-to-date.

The board of education has taken over the care of supervising these recreation places because there seems to be no inclination on the part of any other department to do so. The board is doing all it can under the circumstances, but it should have an amusement. Instructors and life guards have been hired by the board.

The beaches are of concern to the whole community and should be classed as civic institutions. Children
use them and their comfort and safety
should be given first consideration.
Waverly beach at Beloit is a private enterprise and is much appreciated by the citizens of that town.
With Janesville growing by leaps and bounds, it would seem that some civic move could be made to supply a civic place.

There is one condition that this city
has in front of us, has been pointed out time and again: We must provide some amusement for those who reside here.

We are in competition with other cities in the middle west in the job
of obtaining desirable workers for our industries and business houses. It is not so much a matter of wages these days as it is a matter of comfort and contentment. We have no playground for the public. Court House park is about the only outdoor breathing
space of which we can boast.

Surely there is some place along the river which could be converted into an amusement park and bathing beach, and which could be obtained
for a reasonable amount of money.

Madison has some of the most beautiful parks in this section of the state. All of them were reconstructed from practically low marshes. It is true, but the work was done through the efforts of the Madison Park and Pleasure Drive association. The city obtained its funds through popular subscription as well as from the city.
Such an organization could be formed
here and the work carried on in a similar manner.

It might be suggested that a committee be named to make investigation of the methods used by the Madison association with a view of working out a similar plan here.

Janesville, with her wealth and splendid natural facilities, cannot afford to stand still in the matter of parks and playgrounds. The children
as well as the grown-up of Janesville have as much right to enjoy life as those living in other cities and it is the duty of those who can to make a move toward providing recreation centers.

There is another phase to the situation which should not be overlooked. Janesville has been a wet town for many years. Suddenly the social centers of the working men have been closed. Something else must be provided. We here have our opportunity either to provide good,
clean, wholesome places of amusement or we can pay no attention to our citizens and allow them to seek their own amusements with the danger of evil influences swaying them.
With added population this problem
will become more complex.

THE BONUS BILL.

Assemblyman T. S. Nolan's bill, which provides for an appropriation of $15,000,000 for soldier bonuses
after the people of the state have had an opportunity to decide their sentiment in the matter, comes up in the senate tomorrow. The senate bill, which did not provide for a referendum vote, was killed in the lower house last week.

The Nolan bill provides that a special election be held August 19, 1919,
when the matter of appropriating $15,000,000 for soldier bonuses is submitted to the voters. If the proposition wins the governor is to call a special session of the legislature and the measure will be enacted. There will be no delay in the payment of the money if the bill wins favor. Another provision is that if the federal government decides to pay a substantial bonus to soldiers the enactment
of the bill will not be necessary.

No citizen of this state holds the opinion that the men who served the country so gloriously and faithfully
are not entitled to a substantial bonus. If the matter is put to a vote there is little doubt but that it will carry by a wide margin. But it is right that in providing such a sum of money through taxation, the taxpayers should indicate to their representatives in the legislature their wishes in the matter.

At the time the legislators were elected last fall such a project was not even thought of and those who won seats in the legislature have no way of determining the attitude of the public on such a huge project, except to assume that no one is unpatriotic

enough to deny the boys who fought for them suitable money to give them
an opportunity to get back on their feet in civil life.

War-time prohibition has one good effect at least. Local employers of labor declare that Saturday morning was the first time in many years that some of their employees had not been compelled to "lay-off" after the fourth as the result of too much liquid celebration. It is also pointed out that the fellows who were in the habit of coming to work Monday mornings with a "hang-over," are conspicuous by their absence.

With Berlin seething with revolutionists and Italian mobs looting stores, President Wilson's acceptance
of a plan to form an alliance in which France will be protected by the United States in the future, does not appeal to the average American, who believes his country should be kept out of European entanglements.

Expert sport writers are rushing to the standard of Jess Willard, defeating heavyweight champion, declaring that he was not "yellow." Perhaps he was not "yellow" in the sense that he deliberately quit without taking punishment, but most anyone could take a lot of punishment for $200,000.

The crown prince has declared that he will never be extradited, but that he will take his life if the allies attempt to get him. Well, the prince will have to show more courage than he did in the war to get away with it.

He will have to hire someone to shoot him when he is not looking.

The Atlantic has been crossed by ordinary ships, submarines, airplanes
and a dirigible. What next? Efforts will be made now to provide for fast
which will make possible the carrying of enough freight and passengers
to make the endeavor a commercial success.

Now comes Von Hindenburg with tears in his voice and says that if the allies wish to they can stand him, an old man, against the wall and shoot
him. Of course they could do that,
but shooting is too good for him.

The council meets tomorrow night
to discuss plans for providing an up-to-date police department. Gentlemen,
take your hands off your pocketbooks.

Now that the heavyweight championship has been decided, we can turn our attention to the League of Nations and other secondary matters.

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederick J. Has-kin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information write a letter to the Janesville
Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C., and enclose a

by our bureau.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Q. Do soldiers salute properly when they intersect a break in the downward progress of the hand after it has touched the cap? E. R. T.

A. This snap has no proper place in the salute. There are but two counts to the military salute: "one"
brings the hand to the cap and
"two" brings it all the way
down to the thigh.

Q. To whom may the origin of the sewing machine be attributed? Q. 2.
A. Thomas Saint, an Englishman, obtained a patent for the first sewing machine in 1790 in London. The mechanism of the machine was made
of wood.

Q. Where is the poison secreted in a snake? M. B.
A. The poison is secreted from a pair of large labial glands, one beside each upper jaw. These are modified salivary glands.

Q. What is the population of Atlantic City, N. J., permanent and floating? T. B.

A. The bureau of the census estimates the permanent population of Atlantic City at 60,422. The annual average population is about 100,000.
During the month of August there are around 300,000 inhabitants. It is claimed that 10,000,000 persons visit
this resort yearly.

Q. Is it safe to let poultry eat "seventeen year locusts"? F. B.

A. The department of agriculture has recently issued a warning stating that serious losses may result from chickens eating too many of these insects. The wings and legs of the locusts are quite indigestible, and are likely to obstruct the outlet of the crop in such a way as to cause the chickens to become crop bound.

Q. Does Andrew Carnegie offer a pension to teachers? E.

A. The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching provides retiring pensions for the teachers of universities, colleges and technical schools in the United States, Canada and Newfoundland, which are on their accredited list. The pension is given to a teacher who has reached the age of 65 years, and has given specified service or to one who has served 25 years as a professor or 30
years as a professor and instructor,
in the case of physical disability.

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York: Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins hospital, says:
Many men who smoke, chew or snuff
incessantly are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them could never have been afflicted had they not used tobacco. The use of tobacco and snuff would soon get well beyond control. The habit forming power of tobacco is a deadly poison which, when absorbed by the system,
slowly affects the nerves, members and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco is twofold. One and dependent with general debility,
others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme in-voluntariness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardness of the arteries, tuberculosis,
blindness or even cancer of the common affliction known as tobacco heart.
If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests:
Read aloud one full page from a book.
If in the course of reading your voice
becomes hoarse, hoarse and indistinct
and you are constantly clearing your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh and it may become a permanent trouble. Next in the morning before taking your usual
smoke, walk up three flights of stairs at a regular

THE OLDEST PLACE OF WORSHIP.

There are five sacred mountains in China, and the most sacred of all is Tai Shan, the Great Mountain, said to be the oldest permanent place of worship in the world. In 2000 B. C. Tai Shan's crest had been a regular scene
of sacrifices and prayers for nobody knew how long. Emperors and lesser officials, even Confucius the Wise,
laid out the narrow trail of worship and to come near to the God of Heaven and Earth, and make their prayers before Him.

Since those days of simple worship,
many temples and shrines have been built on Tai Shan's slopes. Buddhism, Taoism, Confucianism. All are represented, and there are temples, too, to the Lady of the Mountain, the wife of the goddess, and by others the spirit or soul of the mountain. Whatever her character, the lady is well represented
on her mountain top and her shrines
are popular.

The journey up the mountainside is accomplished by the traveler partly in a swinging chair supported by Chinese bearers and partly on foot. The chair consists of a granite block, interrupted
every little while by flights of steps which stretch on and on and become steeper and closer together until the pilgrim has climbed 6,800 steps and the peak of Tai Shan is reached.

Here there are more temples and thick incense and grave old priests who announce a pilgrim's presence to the gods by ringing deep-toned bells. A little way off is pointed out a rock overhanging a sheer precipice. From this rock, called "The rock of the love of life," persons who had sick
relatives used to fling themselves, hoping that the sacrifice of one life would appease the gods so that the other would be spared. Now the dangerous cliff is barred, and pilgrims are forced to appeal to the gods in the conventional Chinese methods.

After seeing the sights of Tai Shan's peak and marveling at the wonderful view of Chinese scenery obtained from the top, the pilgrim is urged for the travel to do but take his life in his hands and be carried down the 6,800
steps in the rickety little chair balanced dexterously by the natives, who
the rider remembers comfortably
have a reputation for being cautious
and surefooted.

AWAY WITH DOUBTS.

Let me be true to what I know is
good.
I need not fear nor mind the many doubts.
Let me but live to what is understood
I need not heed the rabble when it shouts.

Let me but live to what I know today
And stand erect beneath the light
that gleams.
I need not fear that I shall miss the way
Or find my goal more distant than it seems.

I know not what new realm shall men explore.
Nor what new truths tomorrow
shall proclaim.
Light glows today where darkness
reigned before.
And virtue rises from the fields of shame.

I am not charged to know the hidden
day.
When doubt arise I still possess
one light.
I need not fear that I shall go astray.

Mr. Citizen

NOW'S the
time for You
to BUILD.

HAVE you any conception of the demand for a place to live in this town? Have you watched rents increase, property values jump and throngs of people searching for a place to live? The housing situation in this city is strained to the breaking-
there aren't places enough to go around.

We're Two Years Behind in Building

Government restrictions and orders, need of money for Liberty Loans, shortage of materials and labor—everything conspired to throw us back. We need houses, apartments, store and office buildings. It's a business opportunity.

Prices Are Not Going to Drop Far

Those who are in close touch with markets say that prices
cannot drop to former levels—labor costs must remain high,
demand for foodstuffs and building materials will force the fundamental law of supply and demand to work. In fact, they point out, building costs have not kept pace with increasing prices of foodstuffs and labor. We can build now for less relatively than at any time in years.

Build Now! Repair Now!

Janesville Chamber of Commerce

THIS building shortage coincides with the most critical industrial condition this country has ever had to face. We're making the transition from peace to war. Living costs are high. Unemployment for a large number of men means disaster. Without orders factories find it difficult to change from war orders to peace conditions. We must avoid industrial stagnation.

The Government Urges Us to Build Now

Realizing the need for immediate action, the U. S. Department of Labor has organized a movement to stimulate home building.
Your $10,000 contract, they point out, forces ten for $1,000—those ten call for 100 sub-contracts for $100. If 50,000 others follow your lead it will reach clear back into the fabric of our nation and help stabilize business.

Forward—American Business

Let's get our big-minded, broad-visioned bankers, our property owners and our contractors together and start to BUILD NOW.
It's a business chance, an opportunity to build up local prosperity and help get our country back on a Prosperity Plan. Start the ball rolling today with your contract!

Paint Now! Buy Now!

THE WISHING PLANE

Well, let's see. In the last story the little folks had started out to explore the castles and the acres and acres of work that surrounded it. It is such a beautiful day outside that the children couldn't wait to see all of the castle before going out.

So they pulled open one of the big doors and romped away down one of the white pebbled driveways.

The driveway was lined with beautiful shrubs and flowers. Little gate-

the stables.

The big doors were open, and he could see that part of the barn was devoted to beautiful horses, and small ponies, and the other part contained several automobiles.

The children were interested in the ponies, of course, just like all of us would be. There was a kindly old man straightening up things around the barn and when the children came in he asked, "Are you the little ones who are visiting King Charles and the Queen?"

When Jack told him they were, he said, "Well, these three brown and white ponies here belong to you and the two little girls as long as you are here. The king told me to get them ready and tell them about it when you came. They are to be used when you just want to roam around about the castle grounds and the roads near here. When you want to go farther I will call one of the drivers who will take you in that big purple touring car, for that is yours, too, as long as you are with us."

I don't have to tell you that the children were awfully pleased and decided to try the ponies right away.

When the children asked the man what his name was, he said, "Why, they just call me the groom."

"Well we are going to call you Daddy Groom," said Jane.

In a few minutes Daddy Groom had saddled the ponies and helped the children onto them. He showed Jack how to help the girls onto their ponies, too, so that Jack could assist them when they were out riding.

Booth felt pretty blue when he saw the children getting ready to ride, but when the ponies trotted out of the ways in the shrubs let the children in on velvety lawns, where they ran about playing tag and chasing Booth, who seemed to enjoy it as much as they did.

They followed the driveway as it wound round and round and presently came to an immense stone building, which Jack recognized right away as

the stables.

When the children asked the man what his name was, he said, "Why, they just call me the groom."

"Well we are going to call you Daddy Groom," said Jane.

In a few minutes Daddy Groom had saddled the ponies and helped the children onto them. He showed Jack how to help the girls onto their ponies, too, so that Jack could assist them when they were out riding.

THE WISHING PLANE

Well, let's see. In the last story the little folks had started out to explore the castles and the acres and acres of work that surrounded it. It is such a beautiful day outside that the children couldn't wait to see all of the castle before going out.

So they pulled open one of the big doors and romped away down one of the white pebbled driveways.

The driveway was lined with beautiful shrubs and flowers. Little gate-

the stables.

The big doors were open, and he could see that part of the barn was devoted to beautiful horses, and small ponies, and the other part contained several automobiles.

The children were interested in the ponies, of course, just like all of us would be. There was a kindly old man straightening up things around the barn and when the children came in he asked, "Are you the little ones who are visiting King Charles and the Queen?"

When Jack told him they were, he said, "Well, these three brown and white ponies here belong to you and the two little girls as long as you are here. The king told me to get them ready and tell them about it when you came. They are to be used when you just want to roam around about the castle grounds and the roads near here. When you want to go farther I will call one of the drivers who will take you in that big purple touring car, for that is yours, too, as long as you are with us."

Booth felt pretty blue when he saw the children getting ready to ride, but when the ponies trotted out of the

ways in the shrubs let the children in on velvety lawns, where they ran about playing tag and chasing Booth, who seemed to enjoy it as much as they did.

They followed the driveway as it wound round and round and presently came to an immense stone building, which Jack recognized right away as

the stables.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

THE "FIREBRAND" AGAIN.
A few days later Annie again encountered the "firebrand" girl in the restaurant square. As before, Annie was described in the eyes of the girl as a "firebrand" and she was told to get out of the square. Annie, however, was not so easily deterred. She was determined to see the girl as she passed.

"Hello—hello, Ann!"

"What's the matter that you never see anybody? This is twice you've rushed right by me. Gettin' too swift to notice us shop girls?"

"No, Nena, you know better. I was just thinking of something else—something at the office."

"So! It's office work now! Where you working?"

"In a place on Fulton street. I'm a stenographer. I'm a stenographer, Nena. I never could go back into the shops again after—after the fire."

"Him—lots of girls had to," answered Nena, biting off her words. "Come on, let's sit down a minute. In a hurry?"

"No, Nena, I thought she was expecting me to call and take her to the moving pictures later. They found rooming at a place on Fulton street. Nena watched the throng of home-going shop people a moment as they trudged across the square from the loft buildings west to the tenements east. Annie was the first to resume the talk.

"Nena, it's so wonderful, doing this kind of work—in an office, I mean. Just think, the hours are only from 9 to 5.30. And there are nice people to work with, and different things to do—not just gluing your eyes on a machine needle all day and afraid to move or speak for fear the boss'll crack his whip over you!"

"I'm getting 12 now, and I'll maybe get a raise the first of the year!"

"She was going to say 'if I ain't raised by that time,' but thought it best to keep Bernie too of this conversation. 'If nothing happens,' she finished instead.

"Why don't you girls get loose from the factory, Nena? There's loads of chances to get along, once you've made up your mind to dig at night school and give up going places. You're smart, Nena, you could do it. I heard you talk that night at the memorial meeting. Why do you wait your time trying to get girls to go on strikes? Why don't you tell them to get out of it all—and why don't you get out of it?"

Annie was unconsciously quoting Bernie.

The "firebrand" had been listening attentively, a half smile beginning to play around her lips. As Annie paused the smile became twisted and malicious and scornful.

"Huh—you got the nice, snug ideas, haven't you?" she responded, looking at Annie with her smoldering dark eyes. "Who's been teaching you, the nice young man I saw you with Sunday? Well, now, please, will you tell me tell you a few things that maybe you don't know."

She spoke with the accent of the Russian Jewish tongue, sounding the "shrd g" where the "ing" should be, and putting thrills into her low tones in the way that had so stirred the dressed audience at the memorial meeting.

"Listen—you're a nice girl, Ann, and I like you. You stayed at the Circle shop same as the rest of us. You were near dead, too, from the heat and the heat and that. You was hungry, maybe, sometimes. But never as bad as us! I'll tell you why."

GINGHAM IS SMART FOR COUNTRY WEAR

BY FLORES.

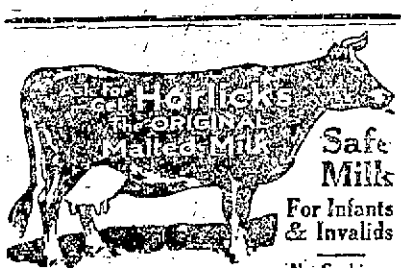

Gingham stands for the same thing in the summer wardrobe as serge does in the winter one. Both are always in style for one piece frocks. Both are serviceable and not outside the pale of slim purse. This summer gingham seems to be more popular than they have been for some time. They are made into all kinds of attractive models and appear in every plaid combination imaginable.

This one pictured is particularly appropriate for country wear although many such frocks are being sold to women who spend their summer in town. Purple and white checks are a variety from the plaids in this case and the crisp organdy gilet and collar add just the right touch of white. The approved of black patent leather belt defines the waistline. This coat dress style has proved very popular for two seasons now and it is unusually becoming to the tall slender woman. Gingham, moreover, is one of the heavier summer materials always make up prettily in the cut dress style.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I met a soldier in another town in 1917. I was with him steady for a week. Then I had to come back to my house. He wrote to me just twice. He knew I thought a lot of him and I think he did, because he wrote me a ring of his own and told me to keep it until he came to see me. In his last letter he sent me a silk handkerchief and said: "Always keep this to remember me by. That was the last I ever heard from him."

His friend that was with him when I met him at the church found that he was not writing to me and began to write. This second young man went to France and while he was there wrote me three or four letters a week. He was forever telling me how much he loves me. I did not go with him but when the first young man came on me while I was away visiting he came with him each time to call on my girl chum who was with me.

My second friend came home from France June 4 and went right home to me. He promised to call on me as soon as he reached the states, but didn't. I received a letter from him since he got back and he said he expected to make me a call soon. He said he was in a hurry to get home as he says he does he would go "way out west without seeing me first."

Do you think that I will ever be able to get back the first young man? If I can find him should I return his ring without his asking for it?

There are many more things I would like to ask, but I am afraid you wouldn't bother with a letter.

WAITING.

Your soldier friend might have had a very good reason for returning home before seeing you. Do not judge his love for you by that. Since he expects to visit you soon he probably cares for you.

HEALTH TALKS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

EATING SALT.
Ordinary table salt contains 97 to 99 percent sodium chloride. A certain amount of sodium chloride is indispensable to life. Vegetable foods furnish little of it, but foods of animal origin furnish plenty. The meat eaters can, therefore, cut out of his diet all the vegetables cannot. Vegetables contain considerable potassium, which must be balanced in the body by sodium.

If too little salt is applied to the animal economy, anemia develops, and there is a diminution or disappearance of the hydrochloric acid which is essential to normal digestion in the stomach. However, life can be maintained on a diet of vegetables and salt other than that naturally present in foods.

If too much salt is added to food—a habit which many have—the kidneys are taxed to eliminate the excess, and experienced physicians and experimental workers believe that the excessive use of salt is one cause of Bright's disease. When the amount of salt taken is greater than the kidneys can eliminate, edema (swelling) occurs. A tendency toward edema, and perhaps some instances of that annoying or alarming condition called "angio-neurotic" (from sudden increasing dropsical swellings here and there about the body) may be caused by over-indulgence in salt or salted foods.

A reasonable salt-free as possible is much prescribed in the treatment of dropsical conditions if it is known that these conditions depend upon defective or diseased kidneys. Of course two or three cases of edema are due to other causes.

Headaches have been relieved in other cases by a low salt diet.

In a description of a series of 45 cases of acute nephritis (acute Bright's disease) observed in a hospital in France, Drs. Vander Veer and Saunders conclude that the cause is unknown but that the nephritis seemed to occur more often in people who ate too much salt and meat. Most of the cases terminated in complete recovery. Restriction of intake to a quart of lemonade daily, for the first day or two, followed by a diet of marked difficulty in breathing or much dropsy, and rest in bed on a salt-free diet were the remedial measures found most beneficial.

A reasonable amount of salt with food aids indigestion and also aids the kidneys in the elimination of waste matters. What is a reasonable amount of salt? Perhaps two teaspoonfuls a day. When more than an ounce a day is consumed (this includes salt naturally in the food and salt added) harmful results may occur.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Symptoms Are Not Diseases.
Please advise me if there is a cure for leucorrhea? (R. R. R.)
ANSWER.—Leucorrhea is a symptom of various diseases and hence not amenable to treatment unless the disease is diagnosed. Often, in fact usually, it is trivial and it would be a foolish waste of time taking special treatment for "leucorrhea" without special application to the local or systemic disease concerned.

Gray Hair and Camouflage.
Is sage and sulphur mixed together a dye? I am only 39 and my hair is turning gray. I use green, good-bye, job. Is it safe or iron in the system that causes the hair to turn gray? I use petrolatum, not for cold cream. Can this oil be taken internally the same as white mineral oil? ANSWER.—Neither sage nor sulphur is a dye. It is right and proper to dye the hair if you wish. I cannot recommend hair dyes. A good experienced barber or hair dresser can do the best job. Lack of iron in the system has no relation to the color of the hair. Petrolatum is the proper name for pure, tasteless, odorless, colorless mineral oil which is marketed for internal use under scores of different trade names. It is not a laxative, but a lubricant.

RUTH CAMERON

ON UNDERVALUING ONESELF.

"Self-love, my liege, is not so vile a sin as self-neglecting."

If one would have the respect of others, one must have first the respect of oneself.

We were talking together recently of a man whom we all knew had just died. Though this man undoubtedly had unusual brains and ability, his life, so far as business went, had been a failure. And the chief cause, we all agreed, was his habit of undervaluing himself, of offering himself for making paving stones of himself for the more exalted to tread upon. Paving stones are valuable things, but we don't expect them very much to think of using them for the purposes.

He Doesn't Give His Brains a Fair Chance.

This man was one of three junior partners in a law firm. The other two junior partners were the sons of the senior partner. Now, though, our friend had a distinctly better mind and just as much education as his junior associates, he was so sensible of their relation to the senior partner that he always effaced himself before them, always deferred to them. The result was that he has never been able to get a start in his own work with a proper respect for himself, a more sturdy bearing; he might have taken a position of honor and authority where his brains would have been twice as useful not only to himself but to others.

Is it not always so? Does not the man who underestimates himself and therefore deprives his good qualities of the force which a justifiable sturdy bearing would place behind them, deprive the world of some of the good which those qualities, properly backed, could have accomplished?

St. Paul's Warning to Titus.

No one would ever think of the great apostle and educator, Paul, as lacking in humility. He constantly displays and counsels it. "In lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves," he wrote to the Philippians. And again, to the Romans: "Be not wise in your own conceit." And yet in advising his fellow worker, Titus, how to conduct himself so as to bring honor to Christianity, he concluded a spirited exhortation with:

"Exhort and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee."

There is a fine sturdy about that last sentence. But isn't the person who would make a good motto for some organization.

Snobbish to Let People Look Down On You Without Reason.

"Let no man despise thee." That implies several things—first, that you will not let yourself be despised; next, that you will hold yourself in proper esteem; and last, that by force of character you will exact proper esteem from others.

We are apt to think of a snob as a person who looks down on other people without any good reason for this superiority. But isn't the person who looks up to other people, effaces himself for them, lets them tread on him without good reason, just as much a snob at heart?

Black, please others. But remember also "Let no man despise thee."

Butter. Mold into loaf. Make incision in top and place two hard-boiled eggs in carefully, kneading together so as to cover eggs. Place in roaster and bake slowly for one hour. This roast looks pretty pretty when carved with slice of egg in center. Also fine to carry for picnic luncheon. Garnish with lettuce leaves, sliced cucumbers or beets.

Strawberry Shortcake.—One quart berries, sugar, lard, flour, baking powder, salt. Make rather rich biscuit dough; roll out thin sheet; place in tin, butter same, then place another cake on top and bake 20 to 25 minutes. Wash, hull and drain one quart of strawberries, place in dish with sugar to taste. If berries are large cut them in two as crushing them spoils the flavor and berries look much nicer sliced on top. Serve with cream or top milk.

Corn Chowder.—One can corn, five potatoes, two slices salt pork, salt and pepper, four cups milk, one teaspoon butter, three crackers broken fine.

Cut the pork in small pieces, put in a kettle and cook slowly until crisp. Do not burn. Cut the potato and onion in small pieces. Add to the fat, cover with water and cook until tender. Add corn and milk and heat to boiling point. Season with salt and pepper. Add crackers and serve hot.

Broiled Bass.—Have the fish dealer split the bass for broiling, then wash and pat dry with a paper napkin and brush the cut surface of the fish with salad oil. Place on a baking sheet and broil in the broiler to the gas range until nicely browned, then eat in the oven for five minutes to finish cooking.

TO PRESERVE EGGS.
Water Glass Method.—Select a few-gallon crock and clean it thoroughly, after which it should be scalded and allowed to dry.

Heat a quantity of water to the boiling point, and allow it to cool, boiling point, and allow it to cool, add one quart of sodium silicate, stirring the mixture thoroughly. This will be sufficient to preserve 15 dozen eggs, and will serve as a guide for the quantity needed for preserve larger numbers of eggs.

The eggs should be placed in the solution. If sufficient eggs are not obtainable when the solution is made, more eggs may be added from time to time. Be very careful to allow at least two inches of the solution to cover the eggs at all times.

Place the crock containing the preserved eggs in a cool, dry place, well covered to prevent evaporation. Waxed paper covering the top of the crock and around it will answer this purpose.

Such was our discovery for that day, but there is another matter which I must mention—the fact that somehow the news of our excavation seemed to have got down to the settlement. It is a curious fact, as the

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth. Yet now, at an age over 60, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, wavy, lustrous hair. No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth

At a time when I had become discouraged, as trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an ointment he asserted would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as profuse as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious panacea. I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle of the ointment, and later had preparing this mysterious hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. The recipe put into practical form by a chemist. That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalko.

How YOU MAY Grow YOUR Hair

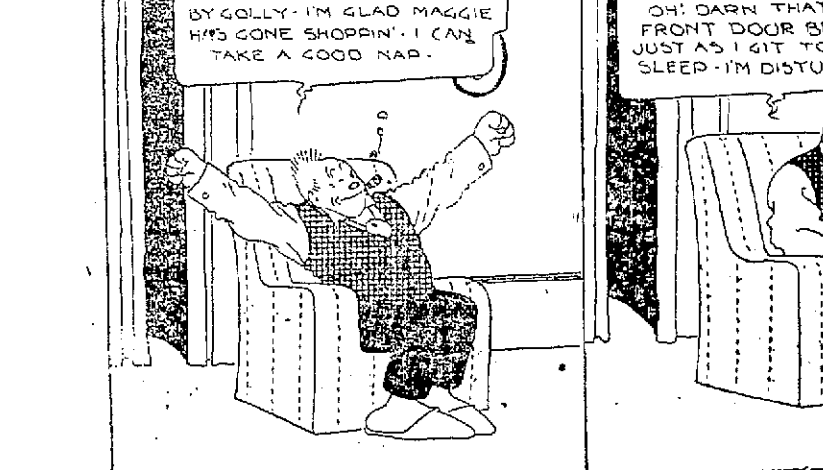

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become impeded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. The scalp, which contains acids and Shampoos (which contain alcohol and hair lotions, which contain alcohol and acids) are the enemies to the hair, as they dry, or make it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

BRINGING UP FATHER

"king" observed that if a man should start to dig for gold in the center of Sahara, with no possible means of communicating with his fellows, on the third day there would not fall to be someone to drop in and remark on the fineness of the weather. So it was with us. As a general thing not once in a twelvemonth did a human being wander into that wilderness where the "king" had made his home. There was nothing to bring them there, and, as I have made clear, the way was not easy. Yet we had hardly begun work when one and another idle nigger strolled in from the settlement and stood gazing his curiosity at our labors.

Toward evening of the third day we came upon a passage leading out of one of the cellars; it had such a promising appearance that we kept at work later than usual, and the sun had set and night was rapidly falling as we turned homeward.

As we came in sight of the house we were struck by the peculiar hush about it, and there were no lights in the windows.

"No lights!" the "king" and I exclaimed together, involuntarily hurrying our steps, with a foreboding of we knew not what in our hearts. As we crossed the lawn the house loomed up dark and still and the door opening onto the loggia was a square of blackness in a gloom of shadows hardly less profound. Not a sound, not a sign of life!

"Calypso!" we both cried out, as we rushed across the loggia. "Calypso! where are you?" but there was no answer; and then I, being ahead of the "king," stumbled over something dark lying across the doorway.

"Good heaven! what is this?" I cried, and bending down I saw that it was Samson.

The "king" struck a match. Yes! it was Samson, poor fellow, with a dagger firmly planted in his heart.

Near by something white caught my eye attached to the latch of the doorway. It was a piece of paper held there with a sailor's knife. I tore it off in a frenzy, and—the "king" striking another match—we read it together. It bore but a few words, written all in capital letters with a coarse

Pencil: "WILL RETURN THE LADY IN EXCHANGE FOR THE TREASURE." And it was signed "H. P. T."

CHAPTER VII.

In Which I Lose My Way.

"The audacity of the fellow!" exclaimed the "king," who was the first to recover.

"But Calypso!" I cried.

The "king" laid his hand on my shoulder reassuringly.

"Don't be afraid for her," he said. "I know my daughter."

"But I love her!" I cried, thus blurted out in my anguish what I had designed to reveal in some tranquil chosen hour.

"I have loved her for twenty years," said the "king," exasperatingly calm.

"Took Harkaway" can take care of himself."

I was not even astonished at the time.

"But something must be done," I cried. "I will go to the commander at once and rouse the settlement. Give me a lantern." I called to one of the negroes, who by this had come up to us, and were standing around in a terrified group. I waited only for it to be lit, and then, without a word, dashed wildly into the forest.

"Harkaway" better take someone with you!" I heard the "king" call after me, but I was too distraught to reply, plunging headforemost through the tangled darkness—my brain boiling like a cauldron with anger and a thousand fears, and my heart stung too with wild, unreasoning remorse. After all, it was my doing.

"To think! to think! to think!" I cried aloud—leaving the rest unspoken.

I meant that it had all come of my insensate pursuit of that filthy treasure, when all the time the only treasure I coveted was Calypso herself. Poor old ignorant Tom had been right after all. Nothing good came of such enterprises. There was a curse upon them from the beginning. And then, as I thought of Tobias, my body shook so that I could hardly keep on walking, and next minute my hatred of him so served me up that I ran on through the brush like a madman, my clothes clutched at by the devilish vines and torn at every yard.

I fled past the scene of our excavations, looking more haunted than ever in the flashing gleam of the lantern. With an oath I left them behind, as the accursed cause of all this evil; but I cannot have gone by them many yards when suddenly I felt the ground giving way beneath me with a violent jerk. My arms went up in a wild effort to save myself, and then, in a panic of fright, I felt myself shooting downward as one might fall down the shaft of a mine. Vainly I clutched at rocky walls as I sped down in the earth-smelling darkness. I seemed to be falling forever, and for a moment my head cleared and I had time to think of the crash that was coming at the end of my fall—a crash which, I said to myself, must mean death.

Fatness Kills 31,000 Yearly

Fat is fatal to health and personality. It is estimated that over 31,000 persons have died each year in the past decade long before their allotted span of life, through the effects of excessive fatness. Any overcast man or woman is carrying unhealthy adiposity that is pressing against and injuring vital organs of the body. The heart, the lungs, the stomach, the liver and other delicate parts.

Through overindulgence the afflicted person while apparently well is liable to nervousness, neurasthenia, physical collapse and other ailments. For obesity is irritating. Cases of heart failure, apoplexy, stroke, etc., are frequent causes of premature death. Fat persons are particularly victims of accidents and are more liable to pneumonia and other, severe ailments.

If you are overcast you should know it is truly a case of slow suicide for you to kill yourself a good many years before natural old age, simply because you do not emancipate yourself from the burden of unhealthy, unsightly fat. Moreover, your children should be improved by becoming slender; also your appearance should become younger and more attractive. There is a secret, a sure, a pleasant method of weight reduction known as Kotalko system. It consists of some simple directions with the use of oil. This method is so pleasant because it contains no torture or other such drastic measures. It is perfectly harmless. It is guaranteed; it is a reliable self-treatment.

By reducing now you may expect greater contentment, happiness, increased mental and physical efficiency, better health and a longer life. Be fair to yourself and those who are dear to you. Surprise everybody with your renewed vigor, vivacity and surpassingly superior personality. Get oil of Kotalko (the only Kotalko system) in each pkg. at the drug store without delay; or if more convenient, send $1.00 cash, stamps or money order to Kotalko Co., 5M-69, Station F, New York, N. Y.

Dinner Stories

This is how a high school girl recently parsed the sentence, "He kissed me."

"He," she began, with a fond lingering over the word that brought the crimson to her cheeks, "is a pronoun, third person, singular number, masculine gender, a gentleman and over all off, universally considered a good catch. 'Kissed' is a verb, transitive, indicative mood, indicating affection, first and third persons, plural number and governed by circumlocution. 'And she sat down.'"

Mrs. Hughes, wife of the Australian premier, is a very fond of children, and has a fund of anecdotes concerning them.

One she is fond of telling concerns a visit she paid to a certain element in the school in Melbourne, shortly before starting for England.

Among the questions put by the mistress to her little pupils was the following:

"Supposing we had boarded a ship last night, and steamed a hundred miles due southwest, where should we be now?" the correct answer being, of course, "Off the coast of Tasmania."

And then a tiny girl in the front row, who had just recently, it transpired, returned from a rather rough and stormy sea trip, piped out shrilly:

"In the cabin, ma'am, sick!"

"Pack my box with five dozen liquor jugs," is the shortest sentence containing all the letters of the English alphabet, and there is no law against liquor jugs so long as there is no liquor in them.

Chicago Grain Review

Chicago, July 7.—Nervousness on the part of shorts led to wild advances today in the corn market. All deliveries jumped to the highest level yet, this land 6 Roadster. Janesville Vulcan-
izing Co., 163 N. Main St.

Continued record buying turns in the value of hogs did much to stimulate belief that corn would ascend especially as arrivals of corn were expected to diminish soon to a material extent. Besides, corn products manufacturers were said to be realizing on the hog market a rate better than $2
a bushel for corn. Opening prices which ranged from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents advanced with September 1.55 1/2 to 1.56 1/2
and December 1.62 1/2 to 1.63 1/2 were followed by a slight sag and then by a radical advance all around including 7 cent for July 1.54.

December developed weakness
later as a result of bearish crop reports. Nocturnal weakness was strong. Influenced partly by foreign orders to purchase and by higher corn. Corn advanced to 1.55 1/2 to 1.56 1/2 closed irregularly at a range varying from 1 1/2 cents not decline to 3 1/2 cents advanced with September 1.54 1/2 to 1.55 1/2 and December 1.62 1/2 to 1.63 1/2.

Oats shared in the strength of corn.
After opening 1 cent lower to 4c
gain with September 70 1
